IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

May 17, 2010

T-shirts Tell Story of Annual Fishawack Run
Event raises thousands for deserving local charities

CHATHAM, NJ – Students from ECLC of New Jersey ran for cover underneath this unique quilt made out of T-shirts collected from the more than 30 past Fishawack runs. ECLC youngsters are very familiar with these eye-catching shirts because each year, they fold the hundreds of T-shirts that are given away and prepare the runners' packets. (ECLC of New Jersey is a non-profit that educates more than 200 special needs students at its Chatham school.)

To guarantee obtaining this year's special shirt, runners are strongly encouraged to register before May 31 and by doing so they will also enjoy discounted fees. Race-day registration is limited, and T-shirts may no longer be available.

The 33rd annual four-mile signature race and one-mile "fun run" are sponsored this year by Brian Hart of Coldwell Banker, Kenny Battiato of Chatham owner of TSS Facility Services, Guardian Financial and Jim McKenna of Atlantic Home Loans. The run kicks off a day of community fun, which includes food, entertainment, a vendor fair and more.

Race applications are available at Chatham Dunkin Donuts, the Library of the Chathams and John Hawk Allstate Insurance located at 11 S. Passaic Ave., Chatham, which is also a drop-off location for completed applications. You also can download an application at www.chathamjaycees.org. Or, take your chances and register that morning at the ECLC School at 21 Lum Ave., directly across the field from the start/finish line in the train station parking lot.
